UNIVERSITY OF MONTANA NAMES NEW STUDENT ADVOCATES

MISSOULA --

The University of Montana has recently selected new members of UM Advocates, an 80-member group of student leaders who help on campus with orientation, fund-raising drives, recruiting and other university activities. Advocates also serve as hosts for Homecoming, alumni relations and UM Foundation events.

New Advocates include junior radio/television and advertising major Jeremy White of Sheridan, Ore., a 1991 graduate of Sheridan High School and the son of John and Debbie White; and sophomore business and Russian major Cody Yaple of Medford, Ore., a 1992 graduate of North Medford High School and the son of John and Sandy Yaple.

New Advocates from Washington are junior business major Jason Shull of Tacoma, a 1991 graduate of Franklin Pierce High School and the son of Don and Tina Shull; junior organizational communications and psychology major Michelle Masterson of Seattle, a 1991 graduate of Roosevelt High School and the daughter of Wava and Joseph Masterson; and freshman business management major Jennifer Cormey of Bellevue, a 1993 graduate of Lake Washington High School and the daughter of Walt and Carolyn Cormey.

New Advocates from California are freshman Heath Canfield, a 1993 graduate of Edison High School, and junior accounting major Chad Canfield, a 1991 graduate of Edison High School, both of Huntington Beach. They are the children of Chiboola and Connie Malaambo.
